Jenny Christie: "Valuing Older Workers". "The statistics re dramatic and simple. Australia's working age population usually grows by around 180000 people every year, and may be better than that in 2005 2006. But trends already in place. Working age population grow by just 190000 for the entire decade of the 2020's a tenth of the current pace." Jenny developed her talk around valuing older workers and the flexible work force. This stimulated lively and pertinent discussion amongst the members and guests and indeed gave us all a lot to think about.
