Spots

Graham Beckett and Alex Jonson reported that materials for East Timor would be picked up from member's houses on Thursday and the loading of the container in conjunction with RC Berri would commence about 9am at Donations in Kind at Salisbury.....more volunteers needed.

Lindsay England advised that John Russell was slowly recovering from his operation but David Payne was still experiencing difficulties with his leg. Help is required to cover his Thrift Shop duties this coming Friday and the afternoon shift of Monday 2 December.

Reno Elms has rosters drawn up for looking after the Salvos Christmas Tree at Unley and Mitcham Shopping Centres. Any help would be appreciated.

Sergeant's Session

As a Christmas treat misdemeanours were excused for the evening.

What a fabulous night in the jungle at the Kent Town Hotel. The old driving range has certainly been put to good use with foliage, slippery dip, ancient jungle movies, terrific food and excellent service.

President Stephen thanked Valerie and Patsy for their organisation of the function, and everyone for their attendance. He expressed appreciation for Kay Tonkin who has been providing hair dressing services to women from Bramwell House, and to Margaret Bosisto who with Sandy has been providing invaluable help for the Thrift Shop.

Patsy Beckett handed out Unley Rotary pens (which we hope will work) as a memento.

The meeting officially closed at 9.25pm.

Chulalongkorn celebrates 10 years of equipping leaders to build peace

By Arnold R. Grahl - Rotary News -- 17 Nov 2015

Bobby Anderson was helping former freedom fighters in Aceh, Indonesia, adjust to life after combat when he heard about the Rotary Peace Center at Chulalongkorn University in Bangkok.

Anderson, who became part of the 2010 class of Rotary Peace Fellows, says the program allowed him to reflect upon the work he had already done and gain a larger perspective beyond day to day practicalities.

"To be able to meet other people that had done similar work in other places and to be exposed [during field study] to the disarmament, demobilization, and reintegration situation in Nepal was fascinating and helped me change how I think about the way I manage my own programs," Anderson says.

Through its six peace centers, Rotary is developing leaders to become catalysts for peace in their communities and around the globe. The Chulalongkorn program offers a professional development certificate to individuals already working in fields related to peace.

Unlike the 15- to 24-month master's degree program, the Chulalongkorn course lasts just three months. Because of the shorter time commitment and emphasis on relevant experience, the program attracts a broader pool of applicants. Chulalongkorn, which celebrates its 10th anniversary this year, has graduated 355 peace fellows from 69 countries.

Its curriculum emphasizes equal parts instruction and learning from peers.

"There are two main aspects of the program," says Jenn Weidman, deputy director of the center. "One is the academic skills, what you actually learn, the steps of mediation, theory of analysis, etc. The other is the transformation."

"We take professional people and remove them from their role, place them in the same space with diverse people for three months, and then challenge everything they've ever believed or held dear," she says. "You get reflection, and we walk alongside and guide that, asking a lot of questions and creating a safe space for discussion. Some come and leave totally different people."

Professors, from both Thailand and outside the country, are chosen each year for a curriculum that is constantly evolving. Fellows also complete two field studies, one in Thailand and one in a postconflict setting outside Thailand where they put their training into action.

"It's an incredible opportunity for me as an instructor in the program to be able to interact with people working on the frontlines in Afghanistan, or Kenya or South Sudan, but then also the U.S.," says Craig Zelizer, associate director of conflict resolution at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., and founder of the Peace and Collaborative Development Network. "The diversity of participants and the change they are already affecting and what they'll do as a result of this program are incredible."

Jennifer Jacobson, a police constable in Canada, attended the center in 2012. She says the group exercises and interactions with classmates altered her views of her work.

"A lot of it is bonding with other people, because you are together all day long, pretty much seven days a week," she says. "I've taken something from every little piece of the program."

Since completing the program in 2007, Meas Savath, of Cambodia, founded the Cambodian Center for Mediation, which provides training and social dialogue, building conciliation between former Khmer Rouge and non-Khmer Rouge factions. Although the country's brutal civil war ended more than 35 years ago, Savath says, there is still a lot of mistrust between the two sides.

"In my program, all parties are invited to share their experience and understanding, as well as their perceptions of the two groups, and afterward they have a relationship that didn't exist before," he says.

The 10th anniversary celebration culminates with the Innovating Global Peacebuilding conference at the end of this month. Program staff are also collecting short video testimonials from alumni that are being compiled.

The Back Page

Confucius did NOT say...

Man who wants pretty nurse must be patient.

Passionate kiss, like spider web, leads to undoing of fly.

Lady who goes camping with man must beware of evil intent.

Man who leaps off cliff jumps to conclusion.

Man who runs in front of car gets tired, but man who runs behind gets exhausted.

Man who eats many prunes get good run for money.

War does not determine who is right, it determines who is left.

Man who argue with wife all day get no piece at night.
